We fancy this is the conclusion that has prompted Governor Miller to call dealers. We have just seen, however, for a State law similar to that of the national law covering prohibition— with the public cost of living. a law that will bring the police forces of the national Government and the police forces of the State Government tem and also providing as follows: of New York into close and active cooperation in the elimination of the liquor traffic.

Let the Farmers Diversify.

The farmers on the irrigated lands in the Southwest, who, in the hope of forcing up the price of cotton, have rledged themselves to restrict the icreage devoted to that staple this year, have given the Department of Agriculture cause for alarm by pretty generally deciding to put their land into alfalfa, which was scarce and consequently high in price last year. But if the farmers plant as much alfalfa as they now purpose to there will be a surplus of this feed, and, inevitably, low prices. The Department urges the farmats "to continue to devote a fair proportion of the irrigated land to cotton. using the most efficient and economical methods of production, in the expectation that market conditions next year will give a fair return for the erop." Of alfalfa it says:

"In any event, an excessive alfa'fa awreage should be avoided, because the live stock population of these irrigated valleys is now below normal and the alfalfa crop is too bulky to be moved long distances to market.

"In general, the action most urgently needed in the valleys of the Southwest is the increase of live stock, so se to permit a return to a
